

All Wildlands players are responsible for adherence to the following Code of Conduct. To ensure that players read and understand the honor code, signature on the Code of Conduct is required of all participants before they may enter a Wildlands event.

I, the undersigned, understand that no set of printed guidelines can encompass all that it is to be a good sportsman. I will make every attempt to conduct myself properly at all times at events, and I agree that at the very least, I will abide by the following guidelines to ensure that Wildlands remains as much fun for everyone as possible:

- I will remember that Wildlands works to provide a safe, fun environment for all players by creating challenging and interesting situations for its characters. Wildlands Non-Player Characters are there to interact with and challenge Player Characters-it is never an "us vs. them" situation. Further, volunteers kindly donate their time to improve everyone's gaming experience; they're at Wildlands to have fun, too. In this spirit, I will always treat everyone with courtesy and seek their enjoyment of the game as well as my own.
- I will not interact as any Non-Player Character outside of events (on the message boards, email, etc.) without prior permission from the Campaign Committee.
- I will not discuss game information relating to storylines, adventures or encounters (including but not limited to NPC stats, backgrounds, motivations) gained while out-of-play, or assisting Wildlands volunteers, with anyone other than the Campaign Committee without prior permission.
- I will remember that even though certain information may seem to me to be common knowledge, not all characters may know it. Many characters enjoy Wildlands for the information gathering/sharing/hoarding aspects of the game, and can have much of that fun ruined by hearing about things between games that their character does not know. I will avoid discussing things out-of-game that could ruin the fun and surprise for other characters.
- I will not make disparaging or disheartening remarks to other players based on information I learned while attending Wildlands. (i.e., "You guys missed so much treasure on that module!" or "That guy was from xxxxx. I can't believe you guys didn't kill him!")
- I will not utilize information gained during my participation in Wildlands North or Wildlands South as a volunteer or as a player to the benefit of my Player Character.
- If I have a conflict with another player (i.e., I believe I hit him but he did not seem to take the blow, he didn't react to spell effects, etc.), I will speak to him out-of-game about it. If we cannot come to a resolution, I will bring the matter to the Campaign Committee and attempt to resolve the situation with their assistance.
- I will make every effort to speak to the Campaign Committee about any significant problems I experienced during an event before leaving site. As a courtesy, I will confirm my comments in writing afterward.
- I understand that there is no "safety net" in Wildlands. By being a Player Character, I take responsibility for my character's victories and calamities. I will be a good sportsman in the face of both.

- I understand that I am responsible for my personal conduct at all times. I am responsible for the consequences of my words and actions and how they may affect those around me. If I am unable to fight safely due to physical limitations, my emotional state, environment, or other factors, it is my responsibility to withdraw from all fights until I can participate safely.
- I will abide by the spirit of the rules of Wildlands at all times, and will not cheat (by not taking hits, not keeping track of spells or other skills used, forging tags or coins, etc.).
- I understand that if I violate the trust of the Wildlands Campaign Committee or my fellow participants by breaking this agreement, I may be banned from coming to future Wildlands events. Further, any disciplinary action as a result of bad sportsmanship will be reported to all other NERO chapters.

We thank you for your cooperation in helping us maintain a safe, fun and fair gaming environment at Wildlands.

I understand that Wildlands trusts me to keep track of my own abilities and effects.

I agree to honestly keep track of my stats, abilities and effects.

I will follow the rules of the game and not cheat to the advantage of myself or my companions.

I will accept all game effects whether they are beneficial or negative.

If I make a mistake I will do my best to rectify the situation without disrupting the game.

I will never “forget” something just because it benefits me.

Wildlands trusts me to be honest, and I will do so because honestly following the rules, keeping track of what I can do, and what I am suffering from will only make the game more fun for all involved.
